INTRODUCTION TO AMERICAN LAW,
Designed as a First Book for Students.
Pourth Edition. By Timoraty Walkers.
By Edward Little and thoroughly revised, so as to adapt it to the existing state of the Law.
By Edward L. Pierce. Svo. $5 50.

"It would be difficult to find 750 pages which gave a more just and complete idea of what law is, or farmish so desirable an outline, whether the reader's object is to obtain a general knowledge of the science, or to prepare himself for a full and thorough investigation of its departments, or merely to determine his own aptitude for the profession whose downin it covers. It is not characterized by that too sententious bretty which renders some clementary treatives the dry and repulsive enumeration of stiff generalizations, while it avoids that protracted discussion which can only be compassed by many ponderous tours. The style's sample, and technicalities are translated into common phase. The author's enumerations of principles are decisive, but marked by a prudent regard for authority."—[Boston Advertiser.

"The intelligent student will value it as a clearaighted guide in the early stages of int tollsome prigrimage, and the accomplished lawyer, if he be free from the narrow prejudies which the profession sometimes engenders, will not turn away with disadin from its unpretending pages, for though it does not pretend to teach him anything new, he will esseem it for the manifestation of a vigorous reflective, and accomplished mind, which he will everywhere find in it."—[American Jarlet.

"This treaties is designed, as the title page states, to introduce students of the law to their chosen profession, and we have the authority of ceriment lawyers that it answers this purpose better than any of its predecessors."—[Chicago Tribunes.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

One of the most valuable works for politicians, and especially for political stump speakers, that has been given to the public for years past, is the P. litical Text Book, just issued from The New-York Tribune Establishment. The work should be in the hunds of every man who dealess to keep himself posted in the political history of the country.—[Anburn Advertiser.

history of the country.—[Amburn Advertiser.

The Political Text Book, compiled by Greeley and Cleveland, is a work of extraordinary merit, and should be distributed in every family in the land. It contains an immense array of facts bearing directly on the issues now before the country. No stump speaker should be without it—[Times, Oiney, Ill.

A POLITICAL TEXT-BOOK FOR 1869.—Horace Greeley and John F. Cleveland of THE N. Y. TRIBUNE have compiled a volume of which the above is the condensed title, which contains an immense amount of valuable political information of all kinds; indeed, it is the most complete work of the kind ever published. The editors have performed their work with great care and research, and the wast amount of matter which they have compressed into their pages is really surprising—[Binghamton Standard.

A POLITICAL TEXT BOOK.—Horace Greeley and John F. Clerelard have compiled a political text-book for 1880, which contains a large collection of facts for speakers and politicians in the penciley Presidential canvaes. The editors are every way competent to the task they have undertaken. They have tried to avoid politicia bias, and as far as we have been able to examine their Text-Book they have succeeded. There is hardly a day passes by in which we are not made the referee to decide some rolitical dismits or some wazer on an electroal return; every

The work of equal value to the members of the various political parties of the country, and its copious index enables those who consult it to turn directly to the information they desire.—
[Easton Transcript.

It is an invaluable compilation, containing an immense array of facts, speeches, letters, platforms, &c., bearing upon the present canvass, such as no well-informed pointcian ought to think of dispensing with. It is a non-partism and impartial work, and very cheap at its price of $1 - [Jersey City Courier and Advertiser.

It is find of information, varius ble and interesting upon the leading political and personal subjects of past times and of the present. It is at once full and fair, and completely bears out the promise on the title page, that it should comprise "A brief view of the Presidential commissions and elections, including all the national platforms ever yet adorated; also, a history of the strongles respecting Slavery in the Territories and of the action of Congress as to the freedom of public lands, with the most notable speeches and letters of Messrs. Lincoln, Donglas, Bell, Cass, Saward, Everett, Breckfurdige, H. V. Johnson, &c., touching the questions of the day; and returns of all Presidential elections into 1836. We healtate not to designate it an honest hund-book of political information.—[Formey's Press, Philadelpha.

While we cannot agree with Mr. Greeley in some of his ultra or peculiar views, we also must concede that the statistical documents which he issues are aiways fair, able, accurate, and full. Everything connected with the votes in the last six Presidential elections, down even to the details, are given with accuracy and fullness. Furthermore, all that is needful to be known as to our chief political struggles and transactions from the foundation of the Government till now, together with the most famious most speeches and letters of our leading public men, with numerous ether matters of

A POLITICAL TEXT BOOK FOR 1950.— This book, compiled by Horace Greeley and John F. Cleveland is just what we want and the very best work of the kind we have ever seen. It is well arranged, printed on good clear type, has a full index, and is entirely reliable. The price, we believe, is $1, and is very cheap at that.—[Detroit Tribune.

No working politician, after once glancing through this volume, will fail to become a purchaser. Especially will this be the case with all campeign orators, of whatever party, in this quadrangular contest. We have examined the volume with some care, and the more thoroughly we have examined the greater has been our admiration of both the manner and matter of the compilation. It is almost unnecessary to add that Horace Greeley is at the bottm of this compilation, as everybody will at once say that no ether man in the country would plan and perform a work, so timely and vellable in its nature, so wisely and so well.—[Now-Hampehire Statesman.

As a book of reference, it will be of more than transion interest and importance. We are gratified to see the positions of the American Anti-Slavery Society on the subject of disminer countaily defined in its Price one dellar.—[Liberator Just Tare Ecok For Ture Tare.—The Political Text Book.
